INTRODUCTION

The Longines EEF Series enters its sixth year in 2026, touring Europe in regional qualifiers before two semi-finals determine the 10 teams that qualify for the Final.

The Longines EEF Series stands as Europe's key Nations Cup competition for developing show jumping talent. Operating at the 3* and 4* levels, it serves as the primary pathway for developing combinations, focusing on growing the breadth and depth of talent from all European nations to reach top-level competition.

Teams compete over two rounds on identical courses under Table A against the clock format. Each team fields four riders per round, with the three best scores counting toward the team total. In case of a tie after both rounds, one rider per team contests a jump-off to determine the winning team.

This series has proven instrumental in expanding the sport's competitive base while maintaining high technical standards. Through consistent exposure to team competition formats and quality events, the Longines EEF Series fulfills its mission of cultivating next-generation talent for international jumping.

The 2026 series is proudly supported by our title partner, Longines.

From the 2026 season, Harcour joins the Longines EEF Series as Official Supplier, providing premium apparel and reinforcing the Series' commitment to quality, performance, and style at every level of competition.

LONGINES EEF SERIES MISSION

At the EEF, we are committed to a sustainable and forward-thinking future for equestrian sport, supporting not only the environment but also the long-term wellbeing and development of horses, athletes, and officials.

The Longines EEF Series is key to this mission, offering a valuable pathway for nations to grow, gain experience in team competition, and build towards future championships.

LONGINES EEF SERIES HISTORY 2021 - 2026

Now in its sixth season, the Longines EEF Series has firmly established itself as a cornerstone of European team Jumping. Born out of a vision to strengthen the sport's foundation across the continent, the Series was launched in 2020 by the European Equestrian Federation (EEF) in collaboration with Longines, with the aim of creating a high-level, accessible competition that would serve as a stepping stone between national shows and elite international events.

From its inception, the Longines EEF Series has embodied the EEF's commitment to inclusivity, development, and sporting excellence. Structured around a regional qualifying system, the Series allows nations to compete within geographic zones, ensuring fair competition and broad participation. The best teams from each region advance to the semi-finals and, ultimately, to a prestigious Series Final, where emerging nations compete alongside more experienced federations in a true celebration of European talent and unity.

The inaugural season in 2020 was impacted by the global pandemic, but the concept proved both resilient and timely. By 2021, the Series was fully underway, offering riders a meaningful team competition experience at CSIO3* level, where national pride and team strategy come to the fore. Since then, the Longines EEF Series has continued to grow in stature and importance, acting as a vital proving ground for future championship athletes and an accessible arena for nations building their international Jumping programs.

Over the past five seasons, the Series has seen memorable victories, emotional breakthroughs, and rising stars emerge. It has also provided valuable leadership opportunities for chefs d'équipe and vital international exposure for horses and riders developing toward European Championships, Nations Cups, and even Olympic selection.
The Series is underpinned by a long-term partnership with Longines, renewed through 2030, reinforcing stability and continuity for its continued development and success across Europe. In addition, from the 2026 season, Harcour joins as Official Supplier, further strengthening the Series' professional presentation and support for athletes and teams.

For the European community, the Longines EEF Series is more than just a competition. It is a strategic investment in the future of Jumping, offering opportunity, visibility, and cohesion to all 42 national federations within the EEF. The Series Final, hosted in Avenches, Switzerland, continues to serve as its flagship destination, with the venue confirmed to stage future Finals, including the 2027 edition. As it continues through its sixth season in 2026, the Series stands as a proud symbol of collaboration, excellence, and the enduring strength of European equestrian sport.

LONGINES

The partnership between Longines and the European Equestrian Federation, which started in 2015, contributes to developing the sport across the continent, while strengthening the watchmaker's long-lasting commitment to the equestrian world.

Longines' passion for equestrian sports started in the early years following the brand's inception in the 19th century. It all began in 1869 when Longines produced its first pocket watch with an equestrian motif. Longines' name soon became associated with sports timekeeping. As the brand continued to push the limits of precision, it gradually became more involved in the equestrian world. A new phase began in 1912 when Longines first engaged in a show jumping competition. It was in Lisbon, Portugal, marking the beginning of a long and successful relationship with the discipline. Longines' early involvement in the equestrian world did not happen by chance as the two worlds share the same values: Elegance, Tradition and Performance.

Since then, Longines has maintained a steadfast commitment alongside the organisers of leading equestrian events and is now more active than ever. Over the years, the brand has strived to enrich the discipline, to bring it to life, to thrill and be thrilled in time with the seconds measured by its watches and timekeepers featuring ever more precise and advanced technologies.

Based in Saint-Imier, Switzerland since 1832, Longines watchmakers enjoy expertise steeped in tradition, elegance, and performance. With generations of experience as an official timekeeper for world championships and partner of international sports federations, Longines has created strong relationships in the sports world. Known for the elegance of its timepieces, Longines is a member of Swatch group Ltd., with its winged hourglass emblem established in over 150 countries.

LONGINES TITLE PARTNER AND OFFICIAL TIMEKEEPER

Longines is proud to be the Title Partner and Official Timekeeper of the Longines EEF Series. The Official Watch of the event is a HydroConquest model. With a perfect blend of contemporary aesthetics and proven performance, this collection embodies Longines' distinctive approach to watchmaking, combining robust functionality with the understated elegance that defines the brand.

Every stride measured. Every second mastered.
One heartbeat shared between horse, rider and watch.
Swiss precision crafted for those who move between worlds, between adventure and elegance, with equal confidence and grace.

HARCOUR

The new partnership between Harcour and the Longines EEF Series signals an exciting step forward for the sport, bringing together two organisations united by a commitment to excellence, innovation and the continued growth of European show jumping.

Harcour is a French equestrian brand designing technical and elegant apparel for riders and their teams. Blending performance, comfort and contemporary style, Harcour supports athletes on and off the field of play through collections for training and competition. Distributed internationally, the brand is committed to delivering high-quality products and a strong visual identity, inspired by the equestrian lifestyle.

As Official Supplier from 2026, Harcour will provide competition and presentation wear as well as exclusive merchandise, enhancing the Series' professional image and visibility across its international circuit.

"We are delighted to welcome Harcour as official apparel supplier of the Longines EEF Series. This Series continues to grow in sporting quality, visibility and commercial strength, and it is essential that our partners reflect the same standards. Harcour brings a deep understanding of equestrian sport, quality products that support riders in their passion, proven experience alongside national teams and a strong sense of identity that aligns naturally with the values of the Series."

EEF President Quentin Simonet

REGIONS

The Longines EEF Series is structured around four regional zones: South, Central, North, and West, reflecting the geographical and cultural diversity of the European equestrian community. Each region includes a group of National Federations and hosts two CSIO3* Regional Qualifiers (RQs) between April and June, providing a competitive and inclusive pathway toward the semi-finals and final.

Region South includes nations such as Italy, Greece, Turkey, and Ukraine, drawing from the Mediterranean and Balkan regions.

Region Central features strong equestrian countries like Germany, Switzerland, the Netherlands, and Austria.

Region North brings together the Nordic and Baltic nations including Sweden, Finland, Estonia, and Poland.

Region West is home to some of the sport's powerhouses, encompasses France, Ireland, Spain, and Great Britain.

CLASSIFICATION

This regional framework ensures wide participation, supports balanced competition, and strengthens the foundations of team Jumping throughout the continent, aligning with the European Equestrian Federation's mission to foster growth and unity across all levels of the sport.

The Longines EEF Series builds through three rounds. During the regional qualifiers, eligible nations will score points to earn progression to the semi-finals. Europe is spilt into four regional groups, with two regional qualifiers for each group. Teams earn points according to their classification in the respective RQs in their Region (teams competing in additional events, outside of their region do not score points), using the following point scale.

The points for each team are added together to establish the Region standings and the top 5 teams from each regional group will move forward to the semi-final. At the semi-finals, it's all to play for as the top 5 from each semi-final gain progression to the Final.

Full rules for the Longines EEF Series are available here.

COMPETITION FORMAT

The EEF Series Nations Cup competition consists of two rounds, with identical courses. Both rounds are run according to Table A against the clock. Teams field four athletes per round, with the best three scores counting towards the team total. Any teams that are eliminated, disqualified, retired, or withdrawn in the first round are not allowed to take part in the second round.

The qualification process begins with four distinct regions: South, Central, North, and West, each comprising specific member nations. Every region hosts two CSIO3* Regional Qualifiers (RQs) between April and June.

Region South National Federations:ALB, BIH, BUL, CYP, GRE, ITA, MKD, MLT, ROU, SMR, SRB, TUR, UKR, CRO, MON

Region Central National Federations: AUT, CZE, GER, HUN, LIE, NED, SLO, SUI, SVK

Region North National Federations: DEN, EST, FIN, ISL, ISR, LAT, LTU, NOR, POL, SWE

Region West National Federations: AND, BEL, ESP, FRA, GBR, IRL, LUX, POR

Teams must participate in both RQs within their region to accumulate points, with first place earning 100 points, second place 90 points, and so on down to 30 points for eleventh place and below. Rankings are determined by combining points from both RQs, with tiebreakers decided by performance in the higher-level qualifier or the second RQ if levels are equal.

Placing Points:  1st – 100, 2nd – 90, 3rd – 80, 4th- 70, 5th – 60, 6th – 55, 7th – 50, 8th – 45, 9th – 40
10th – 35, 11th and beyond – 30

The Semi-Finals, held at CSIO3 level, bring together the top performers from paired regions. Semi-Final 1 features the top five teams from the South and Central regions, while Semi-Final 2 includes the top five teams from the North and West regions. The host nation of a Semi-Final may compete as an eleventh team if not already qualified, and up to two additional non-EEF teams can be invited, though they cannot qualify for the Final. The top five eligible teams from each Semi-Final advance to the Final.

The EEF Series culminates in a CSIO4* Final, featuring the ten qualified teams from the Semi-Finals, with the host nation potentially joining as an eleventh team if they attempted qualification.

JUMPING

Jumping is the best known and arguably most universally appreciated of the recognised equestrian FEI disciplines and is one of the three Olympic equestrian sports, alongside Dressage and Eventing. As in all equestrian disciplines, Jumping is unique in offering a level playing field where men and women compete on equal terms in both individual and team events.

A thrilling blend of athleticism, precision and partnership, Jumping sees horse and rider navigate a course of 10 to 13 knockable obstacles, some set as double or triple combinations, with 4 penalties given for each fault. With its emphasis on speed, technique and mutual trust, Jumping has long captured the imagination of audiences worldwide and remains a cornerstone of elite equestrian sport.

Europe has played a defining role in shaping the legacy of Jumping. It was in 1957, at Rotterdam in the Netherlands, that the very first European Jumping Championships were staged – a landmark moment that laid the foundation for what would become a prestigious and fiercely contested title.

At the heart of today's European Jumping landscape is the Longines EEF Series, a unique and strategically important team competition developed by the European Equestrian Federation. Created to strengthen the grassroots and regional foundations of the sport, the Series offers nations across Europe a valuable platform for development and high-level competition. With its regional qualification system leading to a thrilling final, the Longines EEF Series plays a vital role in supporting emerging athletes, broadening participation, and building national teams.

For many riders and federations, the Series is not only a pathway to international success but a symbol of unity, opportunity, and collaboration across the continent. It reflects the EEF's mission to nurture talent, promote accessibility, and foster excellence from the ground up, ensuring that the strength of European Jumping continues to grow from its roots to the very top of the sport.

The European Equestrian Federation proudly upholds this legacy, championing the values and ambitions of the European Jumping community. Through continental championships, grassroots initiatives, and the continued evolution of the Longines EEF Series, Europe remains a global leader in equestrian sport, where courage, grace, and partnership know no borders.

JUMPING

DIFFERENT TYPES OF OBSTACLES

Riders are faced with a variety of jumps and obstacles and are most commonly made up of poles or planks suspended by standards on either side. The direction of the course is indicated by flags located on either side of the obstacle (a red flag on the right and a white flag on the left). The order number of the obstacle is indicated at the foot of the obstacle.

The course consists of a variety of obstacles, including fences, walls, oxers, verticals, and combinations.

1. Vertical obstacles

A vertical jump consists of a single pole/fence suspended by a jump standard on either side, testing the horse's ability to clear a straightforward obstacle. The horse must rise above the obstacle by raising its shoulders strongly. The obstacles at the Olympic Games measure 1m60 to 1m65 in height, the biggest for international competitions.

2. Oxer obstacles

An oxer consists of two or more sets of vertical jumps placed parallel to each other that are jumped in a single effort. Because two verticals are being jumped in one effort, the width of the jump is greater than that of a singular vertical, creating a spread. The horse must approach them with enough momentum to be able to "clear" them, across the width. At the Olympics, they can exceed 2 meters wide.

3. Water obstacles

There are two types of water obstacles used which can be either an open water jump, where the horse jumps a shallow pool of water or an obstacle built using a tray of water that must be cleared by the horse

Water Jump: A water jump, or open water jump, typically consists of a shallow pool or water feature that the horse must jump over. These jumps focus on the distance rather than the height of the jump. If a foot lands in the water jump, four faults are incurred.

Liverpool: A Liverpool jump is similar to a water jump, however, it is typically not as wide and has a vertical or oxer jump over the water. The horse must clear the jump and water element without knocking any rails.

LONGINES EEF FINAL 2026

The prestigious Longines EEF Series Final will return to the National Equestrian Institute of Avenches (IENA) from 3–6 September 2026, building on the success of its inaugural edition at the venue and reaffirming Avenches as a premier stage for international show jumping.

As Europe's leading Nations Cup competition for developing talent, the Final will once again bring together the top 10 teams, qualified through eight regional series and two semi-finals. Across two thrilling rounds, teams of four athletes will compete at the exceptional 142-hectare IENA facility, renowned for its world-class infrastructure and sporting excellence.

Led by an experienced organising committee including Edwin Smits, Julien Pradervand, and Anthony Darioly, the event is set to welcome nearly 300 horses and around 100 elite international athletes. With free entry for spectators and extensive global coverage via ClipMyHorse.TV, the 2026 Longines EEF Series Final promises once again, an engaging and accessible experience for fans worldwide.

Ideally located at the heart of Europe, Switzerland offers outstanding accessibility for participating nations, while IENA provides a spectacular backdrop to showcase both the country's rich equestrian heritage and the dynamic, team-driven spirit of the Longines EEF Series.

Building the Challenge: The Course Designers Behind the Longines EEF Nations Cup Series

The athletes and their horses may be the ones in the spotlight, but before every Longines EEF Nations Cup begins, another group has already done the hard work of deciding exactly what questions the horse-and-rider combinations will have to answer.

Course designers are the architects of the sport. They decide where the fences go, how the distances ride, how technical a track should be and, crucially, where the line lies between challenging and unfair. Across the Longines EEF Nations Cup Series, that challenge evolves. Read more

The Team Behind the Team: The Veterinary Care Keeping Nations Cup Horses at the Top

When a Longines EEF Nations Cup team enters the arena, the focus is naturally on the four athletes, their horses and the national colours they carry. But behind every combination is a much larger team working to ensure that the equine athletes arrive fit, compete safely and return home in the best possible condition.

From biosecurity and veterinary inspections to carefully managed footing, weather contingency plans, cooling facilities and constant communication between organisers, team vets, grooms and chefs d'équipe, horse welfare is woven into every stage of a Longines EEF Series Nations Cup. Read more

Six Years of the Longines EEF Series: The Success Stories You May Have Forgotten

With the final of the 2026 Longines EEF Series just a couple of weeks away, we look back at some of the competition's most memorable moments and the stories behind them.

Ukraine's podium finish
Ukraine produced one of the standout performances of the 2023 Longines EEF Series when they finished third behind Austria and Belgium at the final in Warsaw. Read more

More Than a Clear Round: What Makes a Great Nations Cup Horse?

When a horse enters the arena wearing the colours of its country in a Nations Cup, the pressure is different. It is no longer simply horse and athlete competing for an individual result: every fence has consequences for the three other combinations standing alongside them, and every round contributes to the fortunes of an entire team. So what makes a great Nations Cup horse?

For Katharina Rhomberg, the Austrian 5* athlete who has represented her country at Championship level, the answer starts with something deceptively simple: the horse has to want to jump clear. "Intelligent, needs to have energy and a good mindset- that the horse wants to jump clear," she says. Read. more

From Semi-Final to Final: How Riders Prepare Their Horses for Avenches

We are just days away from the 2026 Longines EEF Series Final in Avenches, Switzerland, where ten qualified teams will be aiming to arrive with their horses and riders in peak physical and mental condition.

But with eight weeks since the South-Central semi-final in Samorin, what have riders been doing to give their horses the best chance of being in their prime in Avenches? Read more

Starting Order Revealed for 2026 Longines EEF Series Final Avenches

The countdown to the 2026 Longines EEF Series Final is on, with the starting order now confirmed for Sunday's championship showdown at IENA Avenches.

For the second consecutive year, Avenches will host the decisive Final of the Longines EEF Series, bringing together ten nations from across Europe for the final battle of the season. After a record-breaking journey through eight regional qualifiers and two highly competitive semi-finals, the stage is now set for the Series to reach its conclusion. Read more

Ten Nations Ready for the Ultimate Test in Avenches

The climax of the 2026 Longines EEF Series is almost here, with ten nations set to contest Sunday's Series finale at l'Institut Équestre National d'Avenches (IENA) as they battle to be crowned this year's champion.

Only three nations have won the Longines EEF Series Final over the past five editions of the competition – Italy in 2021, 2022 and 2024, Austria in 2023 and Switzerland in 2025. All three of these nations have qualified for the final this year. Will one of them triumph once again or will a new nation claim the title? Read more

Belgium Crowned 2026 Longines EEF Series Champions in Avenches

Belgium prevailed in a dramatic Longines EEF Series Final at l'Institut Équestre National d'Avenches (IENA), lifting the trophy ahead of Sweden, who led for most of the competition. Austria finished third.

Fourth at the end of round one on a score of 12, Belgium, who won both the Region West qualifier in Lier (BEL) and the semi-final in Peelbergen (NED) and stood on the podium a further four times, raised their level in round two. Read more
